

Sara Hezbom, Community Association Manager

Sara Hezbom is a Seattle-based Community Association Manager with a diverse background spanning hospitality, property operations, real estate, and leadership. With more than a decade of experience managing people, projects, and day-to-day business, she is known for her ability to build strong relationships, streamline processes, and create positive community experiences.

Sara attended the University of Washington, where she studied forensic psychology before pursuing a career in real estate and earning her WA broker license. Her professional journey began in luxury transportation services and evolved through leadership roles in hospitality and property management, giving her a well-rounded perspective on customer service, business, and team development.

A unique chapter of her career took her across the country as a corporate flight attendant, living in both San Francisco and Chicago. Those experiences sharpened her adaptability, strengthened her communication skills, and taught her how to thrive in fast-paced environments while delivering exceptional service and operational support. Outside the office, Sara very much enjoys traveling, jewelry making, exploring the beautiful Pacific Northwest with her dog Soleil, and immersing herself in local festivals, global fine arts and holistic culture. Also, a lifelong film enthusiast, she has a deep appreciation for storytelling, cinema, and connecting with fellow creatives.
